3.In 2011, nearly $9 billion in Cisco networking equipment was approaching end of life or service.

Which statement is true of customers with this aging Cisco hardware in their infrastructure?

- A.In this economy, very few customers are looking to upgrade their networks despite the fact that their aging Cisco infrastructure lacks both agility and scalability.
- B.The majority of these Cisco customers have already purchased new Cisco products or products from competing vendors.There is still an opportunity here to sell these customers on HP FlexNetwork solutions, but the timing is not ideal.
- C.These Cisco customers know that upgrading to new Cisco equipment from legacy Cisco equipment is always going to be easier than switching to a new vendor for network infrastructure services.You will need to give them very good reasons to introduce HP into their infrastructure.
- D.Now is a great time to introduce these Cisco customers to HP FlexNetwork solutions.Because they will need to upgrade soon, they may already be considering introducing a replacement or secondary networking vendor into their infrastructure.
